Hi Lauren,

It is a simple process, once the sample is back at the lab. Have the Boston DCU bring the sample back to the lab with a copy of the motion for independent weighing or a letter that states that an independent chemist will be coming to re-weigh the samples. The sample will be assigned a Lab # with the letter R for resubmittal.

At anytime, the defense chemist can contact the custodial chemist at the lab (617-983-6622) and they can schedule a date and time. Both the independent chemist and the custodial chemist will conduct the re-weighing of the sample (just to maintain the integrity of the sample).

Hope this helps.

Hi Annie

To follow up on this case, the judge allowed the defendant to get an expert to conduct an independent measurement of the drugs. I was contacted by the defense atty this week about the best manner in which to set up a way for their expert to come in to conduct the measurement. I told her I would reach out to you to figure out the most convenient (if possible) to do this. Let me know your thoughts, since this is all pretty new to me.

Thanks again!!
